Madame Dufour needed to go to town to do the shopping. She had invited the neighbours to come and have dinner with her and her husband. Now she had to buy some provisions in order to prepare a good meal for them.

She got into her car and drove as far as the town centre which was three kilometres away. On arriving, she parked the car in the car park near the shops, got out and headed for the supermarket. Unfortunately it was raining.

Once inside the building she looked for the things that she had put on her list. Suddenly, she heard a voice she knew. It was the lady next door, to whom she chatted for a few minutes. "I will see you this evening", her friend said to her.

Having finished her purchases, she was tired and decided to go home. She went up to the checkout and presented her basket to the cashier. But there was a big problem. She had lost her purse. No doubt she had dropped it when she was leaving the car.

She started to panic but at that moment a young man ran into the shop, holding the purse. "Is this yours, Madame?" he asked. "I have just found it on the pavement". Before leaving, Madame Dufour thanked him for his kindness.
