This document consists of 2 printed pages.

Answer any three questions.

- 1 Assess the contribution made by lay people to the administration of criminal justice in England and Wales. [25]

- 2 Critically consider whether the doctrine of stare decisis allows the law to adequately develop. Would the law be improved if the Court of Appeal could overrule its previous decisions? [25]

- 3 'Delegated legislation enables the fine tuning of the primary rules to take place, without encumbering Parliament as a whole'. (Hilaire Barnett: Constitutional and Administrative Law 2002).

Discuss the accuracy of this description of delegated legislation. Do the advantages of delegated legislation outweigh the disadvantages? [25]

- 4 'Equity was nothing more than a gloss on the common law'.

Critically evaluate this statement and assess the past and present contributions of equity to the growth of the common law. [25]

- 5 Compare and contrast the roles of the various agencies of law reform. [25]

- 6 How does a judge approach the task of sentencing a defendant in a criminal trial? [25]
