2 Gods and Heroes: the importance of epic

Read the following passage and answer the question that follows:

We do indeed meet women ... and they are made convincing, but all are seen in their relationship to the hero.

J Griffin, Homer: The Odyssey (1987) (adapted)

Explore critically to what extent female characters in epic exist solely to help us understand heroes more fully. In your answer you should consider the passage above and your wider reading of epic, as well as the two passages below: [50]

Achilles is speaking to Odysseus:

‘All the other prizes he gave to the kings and leading men stay safe with their owners. I am the only Achaian he has robbed. He has taken my wife, my heart’s love – let him lie with her and take his pleasure. Why is it that the Argives must fight the Trojans? Why did the son of Atreus raise an army and sail it here? Was it not because of lovely-haired Helen? Are the sons of Atreus the only ones of humankind to love their wives? No, any good man of sense loves his own wife and cares for her – as I too loved this girl from my heart, even though I won her by my spear.

‘Now that he has taken my prize from my hands and cheated me, let him not try me. I know him well now – he will not persuade me.’

Homer, Iliad, 9.330–344

‘Odysseus,’ she [Penelope] cried, ‘do not be angry with me, you who were always the most understanding of men. All our unhappiness is due to the gods, who couldn’t bear to see us share the joys of youth and reach the threshold of old age together. Don’t be cross with me now, or hurt because I did not give you this loving welcome the moment I first saw you. For I had always the cold fear somebody might come here and deceive me with his talk. There are many who think up wicked selfish schemes. Helen of Argos, born of Zeus, would never have slept in her lover’s arms had she known that her countrymen would go to war to fetch her back to Argos ... But now you have faithfully described the secret of our bed, which no one ever saw but you and I and one maid ... You have convinced my unbending heart.’

Homer, Odyssey, 23.208–231 (adapted)
