1 Transport and the Environment

'Airport expansion in the South-East is not the right thing for Britain'.
UK Government Transport Secretary, Justine Greening, 2012

To what extent do you agree with this view?

[40]

2 China and the Global Economy

To what extent do you agree that it is both inevitable and desirable that China's influence over the global economy will increase? [40]

3 The Millennium Development Goals

The original Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) were created in 2000, to end in 2015.

Given the aims and achievements of the MDGs, to what extent do you agree that future global economic development strategy should simply extend the original MDG goals into the future? [40]

4 Economic Thinkers and their relevance today (Adam Smith, Karl Marx and John Maynard Keynes)

'There is no alternative way of improving the lives of ordinary people that can come close to the productive activities that are unleashed by a free market system.'

Professor Milton Friedman (Economics Nobel Prize winner, 1976)

'Recent economic experience has shown that the free market damages the lives of ordinary people in society.'

Where would Smith, Marx and Keynes stand on the disagreement identified in the above statements? [40]
